

I understand the FCC is looking into changing the rules concerning Low Power FM stations. I currently listen to KLOVE on an FM translator and Low Power FM could take priority over FM translators. KLOVE directly impacts the local community by providing family-friendly and safe music to listen to. My family and I (along with many of our friends) tune into only KLOVE. Losing this signal would take away our "family-safe" radio station. Not only in this community, but I have friends across the US who listen primarily to KLOVE. Please preserve this station's ability to utilize FM translators to beam its signal coast to coast
